PORTLAND, OR - May 5, 2011 - Rainforest Addict, the leading online membership service for rainforest conservation, today announced that it will give away 10,000 opportunities to save rainforests all over the world for Mother's Day on May 14th, 2011. Through the 'Save Our Forests' program, Rainforest Addict will offer free membership to its active users around the world in exchange for donations to rainforest conservation organizations like World Wildlife Fund (WWF). Moms worldwide will be able to connect with and support their local rainforest conservation organizations and rainforest conservation at-a-glance through Rainforest Addict. "We want to provide our users with a way to connect with and support the millions of girls and women who protect and grow the world's rainforests. Rainforest Addict's 'Save Our Forests' campaign is a fun and effective way to raise awareness about the importance of rainforests while also providing organizations in developing countries with a better way of raising funds," said Rainforest Addict founder and CEO, Mihaela Lacombe. "Moms can easily register on Rainforest Addict and then look up the largest rainforest conservation organizations in their area. They can also make a donation and earn their reward of free memberships at the same time. And the action is immediate because Mother's Day is only a few days away," Lacombe said. The 'Save Our Forests' campaign is timed to coincide with the International Day of the Girl Child.

A guide sleeve is provided to guide a drill string comprising a rod, a tool suspended at the end of the rod, and a drive member for the tool, e.g. a drill bit. The drill string and/or the drill string and the sleeve are typically introduced into a well bore by a drill rig. During operation of the drill rig, the drill string and the drive member are suspended by a traveling mechanism. The drill string is also guided by a sleeve, the guide sleeve engaging on the drill string. The drill string has a lower end of predetermined diameter, and an upper end, the diameter of which is constantly decreasing. The lower diameter is equal to the drill pipe diameter of the drill string. The drive member is a friction member, on which a cutting member is mounted, e.g. a drill bit. This cutting member can be a
